

Annual Statistics from 1 April 2022 to 31 March 2023 (FY22)

The Government of Singapore was a signatory to the Copenhagen Declaration on Anti-Doping in Sport in 2003 and had also adopted the UNESCO International Convention Against Doping in Sport in 2005 by accession, thereby formally recognising Singapore's commitment to implement the World Anti-Doping Code ("WAD Code").

Anti-Doping Singapore (ADS) was established in 2010 by the then Ministry of Community Development, Youth and Sports as the national anti-doping authority for Singapore and is a division within the Singapore Sports Council (rebranded as "Sport Singapore" or "SportSG" with effect from 1 April 2014) responsible for the implementation and management of the Anti-Doping Programme for sport in Singapore.

With the easing of the COVID-19 pandemic, sports events and competitions are slowly making a comeback in 2022. Testing statistics are not back to the pre-pandemic years yet. In 2022, sports events & competitions are still subject to prevailing safe measurement measures.

There are zero cases of anti-doping rule violations from FY20 to FY22.
